CATCHING AGUINALDO

Presupposes That You First Know Where That Filipino Is Hiding.

NOT LOOKING FOR HIM NORTH NOW

Rather Expecting to Find Him Down in Cavite, Where the Insurrection Began and Where the Natives Are Yet Very Hostile to the United States—Indications of Plenty of Fighting Ahead—Where Our Boys Are Marching.

Manila, Dec. 7, 10:50 p.m.—The expectation of catching Aguinaldo in the north has been practically abandoned, and the probability now is that he will turn southward, if he is not already there, with his destination Cavite province, his home, where the insurrection began and where it still has its greatest strength. The Filipino soldiers in that province have recently been showing increased enthusiasm and boldness, and captured insurgents say that Aguinaldo is coming to join them with a large army. The same belief prevails among the natives at Manila and elsewhere that Aguinaldo intends to make his headquarters in Cavite province. There are 3,000 insurgents before Imus and Bacoor, keeping the Americans sleeping on their arms and nightly awaiting attack.

Imus Disloyal to Uncle Sam.
The Filipinos have several cannon. The first mayor of Imus under the American regime, who ultimately deserted, is their leader in the assaults, and is ambitious to take the town. Three soldiers of the Fourth Infantry have deserted, and are now with the enemy. Most of the inhabitants of Imus are so strong in their sympathies with the insurgents that it is necessary to use a part of the regiment to patrol the streets and to prevent shooting from houses whenever an attack begins.

Our Forces in the North.
The American forces in the north have separated into many small commands, and are pursuing bands of Filipinos. General MacArthur is engaged in clearing the mountain country west of the Manila-Daupan railroad. General Grant is moving from Angeles toward Subig with 400 men. Colonel Bell is sweeping south from Mangatrem. Thus far the American commanders have been unable to locate large bodies of insurgents, although there were about 500 in San Clemente, nine miles south of Mangatrem, early in the week. Colonel Hood, with the Sixteenth regiment and cavalry, and General Lawton, with a force from San Isidro, are operating against General Pilar's army in the San Mateo valley.

Battalion on a Daring March.
Maj. Batchelor, with his battalion of the Twenty-fourth infantry, is making a daring expedition. He left Bayombong a week ago to march through Cagayan valley to the north coast of Luzon, intending to reach Apandi, as the mouth of Cagayan river, the most important northern seaport of the island. While no large forces are known to be in his path it may be that he has had some fighting, although the friendliness of the inhabitants is counted upon to help him. When he arrives at Apandi he will find a gunboat awaiting him. The Spanish prisoners in the Benguet region are escaping from the Filipinos and are flocking into Vigan, and a steamer will go to bring them to Manila.

FIRE IN A HOSE FACTORY.
One Woman Burned to Death and Sixty Others Injured.
Reading, Pa., Dec. 8.—One of the most exciting and disastrous fires that has ever visited this city occurred yesterday when the extensive hose mill of Nolde & Horst company took fire, destroying the plant, causing the death of one person—Miss Louise Clay, aged 48, and injuring about sixty other employees of the company. Miss Clay's body is still in the debris at this writing. The hose mill building was a large four-story structure, and nearly 600 persons were employed, most of them being women and girls. The fire was discovered about 11 o'clock and in a few moments the girls were panic-stricken. They made a dash for the fire escape and the stairs, but found that the latter means of escape did not carry all of them down at the same time.

Several hundred of the girls then made a rush for the windows, and appealed to those in the street to save them. Ladders were brought into use, and many girls were taken from the burning building safely. Most of them, however, jumped and were seriously injured. For a few minutes from every window on the second third floors girls leaped one after the other. Some lodged in the arms of those below, but many struck the ground. They were picked up and rapidly removed to hospitals or their homes.

Funeral of Judge Woolson.
Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 8.—The funeral services of Judge John Simson Woolson, of the federal court for the southern Iowa district, were held at the home in this city Wednesday noon. State, city and court officers and attorneys from all parts of the state attended.

Acquitted of Murder.
LaCrosse, Wis., Dec. 8.—A. F. Lynch, of Tomah, was acquitted at Mauston Wednesday of the murder of William Welzel, father-in-law of the defendant. The first trial resulted in disagreement of the jury on the question of insanity.

USED GASOLINE TOO FREELY.

Comes Near Killing Twenty Prisoners in City Calaboose.

Springfield, Ills., Dec. 8.—Twenty prisoners in the city calaboose were overcome by gas while attempting to rid the prison of vermin. The men were given two gallons of gasoline to sprinkle along the crevices of the iron work and the benches. The prisoners then touched a match to the gasoline and immediately the prison was filled with smoke and gas. The screams of the men attracted the attention of the prison officials, who, on opening the iron doors, found nearly all of the prisoners lying on the floor in an unconscious condition.

The city physician was hurriedly summoned, and upon his arrival the men were carried from the prison into the open air, where they were placed on benches. Stimulants were given them and after several minutes most of them began to revive.

STRIKE OF UNION MOLDERS.

Five Hundred of Them Quit Work to Force a Raise of Wages.

Racine, Wis., Dec. 8.—Yesterday morning 500 ironmolders struck at Racine. The union representatives wanted the bosses to sign an agreement to pay $2.50 to $2.75 per day and 10 per cent. increase for piece workers. They were willing to pay the wages, but not sign the agreement, and refused to treat with the union, instead of with the men. This was not satisfactory to the union representatives and the strike was called.

In anticipation of the trouble, the J. I. Case T. M. company's shops, the largest in the city, closed Wednesday evening, and also those of the Racine Malleable and Wrought Iron company and S. Freeman & Sons. State Arbitrator Willott has arrived here and is in conference with George Turner, the union delegate. Joseph Valentine, the vice president of the International union, will be here today.

WILL WATCH HIM DIE.

Young Teacher Gives Up Her School to Nurse Her Sweetheart.

Scottsburg, Ind., Dec. 8.—The resignation of Miss Carrie Garrott as a teacher in the public schools here, this week, is attended with sad circumstances. For years she and Mr. Franklin, who lives in Little York, have been sweethearts, and they were to have been married in the spring. He fell a victim to consumption, however, in the prime of young manhood, and was compelled to give up his collegiate training at Terre Haute.

This fall his malady became worse, and he sank rapidly, until now death is only a question of a few weeks. Last week Miss Garrott left her school here to attend the bedside of her betrothed, but finding the end so near at hand with touching devotion she determined to give up her employment altogether, and she will remain at his side until

THE STATE'S VINDICATION.

Human depravity is an awful fact. We place unbounded confidence in our agencies of public education, and rightly. The great effort of our generation, is to put the highest culture of our civilization at the disposal of every youth of whatever estate. But despite our material greatness, our culture advantage; the school the press and the church, crime is none the less prevalent nor the less criminal. Again the public conscience is shocked by the details of an atrocious murder, committed by a mere youth, with a deliberation next to friendish. This young man was brought up under good home influence, enjoyed the advantages of the public schools and a business University. Every effort was made by his friends to give him a chance.

But the inbred demon will out. Technical education can not be relied upon to prime the human heart of evil. The last and only resort in behalf of the public good is punishment. Crime is a fact and penalty but the state's vindication, but after school and church have done their duty towards the individuals life in society, the only responsibility is with the man, and all that is left the state is to exact life for life.

If Henry Hämberger is guilty of taking the life of John Reindel, then let him have the unmitigated consequence of his awful deed. Here let mercy yet enthrone be silent while grimmer justice decrees, "blood for blood."

THIEVING AT THE NORMAL.

A Young Girl Found to be Light-Fingered.

But She is a Kleptomaniac as is Also Her Mother Before Her.

The State Normal offers no exception to the general truth that as a great educational institution there is bound to be a certain amount of petty thieving, despite the utmost vigilance of the school or college authorities. As the large majority of the Normal students of both sexes are young people fresh from farms and small country towns, where they have been reared under the eye of hard working and God fearing parents away from the allurements of large cities, they are with hardly an exception conscientious students and of strictly upright character. Occasionally, of course, a student of different nature appears, and then there is trouble for himself and every one around him. For the past few weeks several complaints have come to the authorities that small sums of money varying from $1 to $20 had suddenly disappeared from student's rooms. Inquiries were made but absolutely no clue could be obtained of the thieves' identity. The lady from whom the $20 had been taken, chanced to be a householder, not a student, and laid the grievance before officer P. W. Ross.

Mr. Ross was also informed of the other cases, and accordingly set out to run down the culprit, for the similarity of the thefts, one to another, led him to believe that they were all the work of one individual. Several day's careful inquiring and the exercise of a little Sherlock Holmes inductive reasoning finally aroused his suspicions regarding a prominent young lady Normalite. The girl is a bright, pretty co-ed of about 17 years of age, and is not in any way one upon whom suspicion of wrong doing would naturally be cast. Despite this, however officer Ross called upon her and accused her point blank of the crime. The girl at once broke completely down and confessed everything, saying that she didn't know why she had taken the money, as she had plenty of her own, but had "some way seemed driven to it." The parents have been notified of their daughter's wrong doing and will be on the scene this evening or tomorrow. The matter will be satisfactorily settled, and the young girl's name kept from the public.

Such occurrences as the above are very distressing, but the cost should be incurred before the first step in the wrong direction is taken. The authorities are dealing very leniently with the present culprit, but they promise public disgrace to the next student offending similarly. Officer Ross deserves great credit for the clever manner in which he ferreted out the case. He worked entirely alone and was not given a single clue by the persons making the complaint. He is a quiet unassuming individual who is disposed to hide his light under a very opaque bushel, but in the present instance at least his friends say he must have his due.

The several thefts to which the young girl confesses are for amounts of $20, $10, $8, $7, $2, and $1, which sums were all taken from different persons and out of different houses.

A NEWSY LETTER.

PLEA TO THE PEOPLE

Roberts of Utah Makes a New Appeal in the Case of the House vs. Himself.

COMMITTEE IS ALL ON ONE SIDE,

He Says There Being None on It Who Did Not Vote for Tayler's Resolution—Other Objections to the House Procedure—Bill Introduced by Culom That Will Add Many Names to the Pension Rolls—Capital City News.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Roberts of Utah, who was not allowed to be sworn in as representative in congress of that state, has issued an address to the American people. It contains much that was said by Roberts on the floor of the house and by Richardson, who opposed the resolution of Tayler of Ohio. After reviewing the facts and proceedings resulting in the appointment of the committee, he says:

"The member from Utah is not allowed to take the oath of his office, and a committee is appointed to try him as to his alleged guilt of the offenses charged. Nay, even more is granted than was asked, at least more than was asked upon the floor of this house: For a hostile committee has been appointed to inquire into the case. Its membership is made up entirely of those who voted to adopt the method of procedure. Not one who voted against it was allowed to find a place upon that committee; and if the creation of such a tribunal for such a purpose be allowed there is no reason why the committee should not be made up of members of one political faith—for the majority may do as it pleases about that."

Wants the People to Stop and Think.

"I ask the American people to stop and think what that may mean to this country in times of high political excitement and party strife and passion. "(1) A formidable minority in the house may be reduced either to a very insignificant minority or even blotted out of existence.

"(2) The representation to which a state is entitled on the floor of the house may be denied to it—as in this Utah case—for any length of time this committee may elect to deny it such representation. * * * If the present Republican house can thus deprive Utah of her representation there is no reason why it could not deny Virginia her's, even though she has ten representatives, for ten representatives as easily as one can be turned away from the bar of the house, and one state as well as another if a bare majority in the house chooses to have it so.

Declares It a New Precedent.

"(3) This new precedent also strikes down the constitutional guarantee of a right to one accused of crime, to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state wherein the crime shall have been committed. * * *

I deny the existence of the lawful power of the house to prevent me from being sworn in on the presentation of the same evidence of prima facie right upon which others are admitted to membership. I deny the right of the house of representatives to resolve itself into the justice of the peace court to try me for a misdemeanor, alleged to have been committed, in order to find grounds of expulsion or exclusion from the high office to which I was elected. * * * If I were guilty of the misdemeanor charged, even flagrantly so—here in the capital—I could not even be arrested for the offense, so slight is it considered under the law."

Roberts declares that in his case violence is threatened to the safeguards of the liberties of the whole people.

BILL THAT WILL INTEREST MANY.

Gives Amnesty and Pensions to a Large Number of Old Soldiers.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Senator Culom is the author of a bill which can not fail to interest thousands of men all over the country. It is a bill by which it is proposed to grant a sort of general amnesty to all veterans of the civil war by removing from the official records of the war department all charges which affect the honorable standing of men who fought in the federal army. The clearing of their records will open the way for them to receive pensions, which they cannot get with charges of desertion on their war records.

At every session of congress members of both branches are deluged with applications from old soldiers who are anxious to get a pension, but cannot do so on account of a charge of desertion against their names. It is well known that in thousands of cases the charges are merely formal. They have resulted often from the fact that a soldier has overstayed his leave for a day or has gone to see a dying son or wife without waiting for the permission from his commanding officer. In other instances the charge has come from the inaccurate records of inefficient or inexperienced officers of the volunteer service.

It is urged in behalf of the bill that thirty years have passed, and those who have been under disability have already been sufficiently punished. It is said there are more who are suffering innocently than those who are real deserters and deserving of the penalty.

Another pension bill by Culom was framed by the association of veterans of the Mexican war. They wish every veteran above 75 years of age be given a pension of $25 a month.

Senate and House in Brief.

Washington, 8.—The senate yesterday did not business of importance, and adjourned to Monday.

The session of the house lasted only half an hour. Overstreet, in charge of the finance bill, attempted to reach an agreement for its consideration next week, but Richardson rejected all proposals. The speaker appointed Dalzell, Grosvenor, Richardson and Bailey, the committee on rules, himself being a member also. Roberts, of Utah, was in the hall throughout the session, and occupied the seat he selected on Monday. The house adjourned as mark of respect to the late Representative Greene of Nebraska.

No Rehearing for the Trust.

Springfield, Ills., Dec. 8.—The supreme court yesterday the petition of the Sugar Refining company for leave to file suggestions in support of a petition for a rehearing in the "glucose trust case" was denied.

Pope's Cold Is Only Slight.

Rome, Dec. 8.—Cardinal Rampolla,

QUIET ALL ALONG THE LINE.

Little Fighting Going on in South Africa—Methuen Talks to Kimberley.

London, Dec. 8.—The most important news from South Africa is that Methuen is in mighty communication with Kimberley (by searchlight signals, it is probable). Everything is reported quiet on both British lines of advance. A Pretoria dispatch of date Dec. 6 says: "Official dispatches received here from the different Boer forces say all is quiet except at Kimberley, where an armored train made a sortie this morning. The Tugela bridge is so completely ruined that it will be a work of great magnitude for either belligerent to restore it."

A "Kaffirgram" received at Durban tells of a bloody repulse of the Boers at Ladysmith Dec. 4, but Kaffirgrams are not considered credible news here. Nothing further has been heard of the reported illness of General Joubert. But the first report came from Pretoria, so it is probably true.

Pietermaritzburg, Tuesday, Dec. 8.—General Butler and his staff have started for the front.

WIDENER GIVES $2,000,000.

Street Railway Magnate Will Endow a Home for Crippled Children.

Philadelphia, Dec. 8.—Peter A. R. Widener, the millionaire traction magnate of this city, yesterday announced that he had purchased thirty-six acres of land at Logan, a suburb of Philadelphia, on which he intends to erect and endow a home, hospital and school for crippled children, at a cost of $2,000,000. The announcement was made in a letter from Widener to Mayor Ashbridge.

Widener states that the object of the institution is the care of helpless children. The home is to be a place "where they can receive such medical and surgical attention as will cure or allay their deformities, and where they can receive not only a general education but an education and instruction in such industrial lines as will assist them toward self-support." The institution will be known as the "Widener Industrial Home for Crippled Children."

PORTO RICANS IN COLLEGE.

Two of Them at the Michigan State University Studying Pharmacy.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 8.—Porto Rico has two students now in the school of pharmacy of the University of Michigan. They are both from the pharmaceutical house of Fidel Guillermey, at San Juan. A son of the proprietor is one of those now studying in Ann Arbor. He is a graduate of the University of Barcelona in Spain, as B.A. 1893.

He says that at Barcelona the modern language study is confined to the French, while at the institute in Porto Rico, where he previously studied, English and German were taught as well as French. The other of these chemical students is Mr. del Valle, a ward of Fidel Guillermey. His preparatory studies were at the San Juan institute. Both these men have worked in pharmacy.

Minister Charged with Fraud.

Saginaw, Mich., Dec. 8.—The congregation of the Mackinaw Street Baptist church here is wrought up because Rev. C. A. Marshall, to whom they recently extended a call, was declared unfit for the ministry by the Shiawassee Baptist association at a meeting at Corunna Tuesday. The divine is charged with fraud, untruthfulness, etc. The action has created a sensation. Rev. Mr. Marshall is well known throughout the state.

Surveying for a New Railway.

Iowa Falls, Ia., Dec. 8.—The fact that a surveying party for the proposed Des Moines, Iowa Falls and Northern road has just commenced work here and has started its line from the Illinois station and the further fact that the Iowa river will be crossed on the Illinois Central bridge, have led to the belief that the Illinois Central is backing the project and expects thereby to begin its long desired entrance into Des Moines.

He Is Wanted for Murder.

Springfield, Ills., Dec. 8.—The police of this city arrested Charles Riley Apperson, who confesses that he is wanted in Marlington, Pocahontas county, Va., on the charge of murdering Julia Simons by shooting her. Apperson, however, claims that he is innocent of the murder, and that it was committed by his partner, Andrew Lowdmill, in the presence of Apperson.

Great Northern to Get the Road.

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 8.—Railroad men in a position to know say there is no question that the Great Northern will secure the Sioux City and Northern when it is sold under foreclosure Dec. 12. From a usually reliable source comes the information that the Sioux City and Northern and the Pacific Short Line are to be taken into the Great Northern system.

Must Pay for His Drunken Freak.

Janesville, Wis., Dec. 8.—Frederick O'Brien, who while drunk blew up a portion of his home on the morning of Nov. 17 with dynamite to frighten his wife, pleaded guilty yesterday to assault with intent to commit great bodily harm. He was fined $200 or six months in jail.

Convicts Have a Hot Fight.

Pontiac, Ills., Dec. 8.—William Flowers and Jesse Myers, convicts in the Illinois state reformatory had a fight. Myers was knocked down, striking his head upon the concrete floor, and during the night he died. A coroner's jury holds Flowers on a charge of manslaughter.

River Pilots' Association.

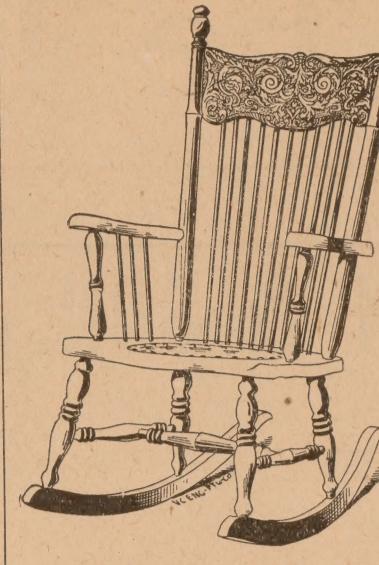

LaCrosse, Wis., Dec. 8.—The Upper Mississippi River Pilots' association in convention here elected the following officers: President, Joseph Buisson, of Wabasha, Minn.; secretary-treasurer, A. O. Day, Clinton, Ia.

No Rehearing for the Trust.

Springfield, Ills., Dec. 8.—In the supreme court yesterday the petition of the Sugar Refining company for leave to file suggestions in support of a petition for a rehearing in the "glucose trust case" was denied.

Pope's Cold Is Only Slight.

LOVE FINDS A WAY.

BY JEANNETTE H. WALWORTH.

Copyright, 1899, by Jeannette H. Walworth.

encircled bay window into the tangle of beauty and perfume which Ollie called her garden; it was pleasant to contemplate the fact that this dear child had but to express a wish and he was able to gratify it. Things had gone well with him the last four years. Men said he was waxing rich as no lawyer of Mandeville ever had before him. It was pleasant to prolong this communion time.

Presently he would go off to his office, and the sweet music of his darling's voice would be swallowed up in the harsher tones of angry men chafing for their rights. But just now Olivia was growing a trifle inquisitorial, and it was that which sent him away from the table somewhat abruptly.

"Appropriately! Why, bless my soul, of course! What shall we do?"

"Don't you even know, father, that a girl comes of age when she is 18? She doesn't come into a vote and all that sort of nonsense, but she comes out, and I propose to do that appropriately."

"Celebrations?" He repeated the word perplexedly.

"Don't you even know, father, that a girl comes of age when she is 18? She doesn't come into a vote and all that sort of nonsense, but she comes out, and I propose to do that appropriately."

"Appropriately! Why, bless my soul, of course! What shall we do?"

"Mother" Spillman's cottage was virtually on the Broxton grounds. It had originally been built for the porter's lodge to Broxton Hall by a wealthy Englishman who, having invested largely in some tile factories on this side, fancied he should like to live in close proximity to them.

It was a fancy that died in its early stages.

Whatever else his shortcomings, physical cowardice was not among them. Some one was in the Broxton house and in the colonel's study. To go back for Simon would be useless. He would not come. He must depend upon his own address and his own nerve.

Stealing noiselessly to the front of the house, the lawyer mounted the low front steps and tried the front door handle softly. It was locked. With a strong grip he next seized one of the shutters of the long French windows that opened from the parlor to the veranda floor. It yielded readily. So did the sash. He slipped his shoes from his feet and sped with swift noiselessness across the hall. The study was at the rear of the house. It connected with the room in the parlor suit by the doors glazed with dead ground glass. Through the dim glass of these doors the pale phosphorescent gleam came steadily. He would catch the thief red handed. His hands were planted firmly on the silver doorknobs. He sent the sliding doors gliding noiselessly in their grooves with a resolute touch. Then he staggered and held fast by the Intel to keep himself from falling.

Bending over the dead man's study table was a tall, shadowy form in white. The sound of scattering loose paper fell on his ears with a ghostly rustle. He saw a restless hand three times distinctly. In a sighing whisper he heard the words, "Lost, lost, lost!"

all this in a second of time. The night wind swept through the open front window. The pale light was suddenly extinguished. The house lay in utter darkness. A faint, slow movement, like the rustle of garments, came nearer to the terror palsied man, passed by him, died away entirely.

"But the people?"

"The Westovers are expected back from Europe on Monday. I should especially like them to see that one does not have to go abroad to know what to do on occasion. Oh, I want it to be very grand indeed, papa! Miss Malvina Spillman will help me to make it just perfectly lovely. She can act chaperon too. I can make out quite a splendid list of guests."

A strange hesitation seemed to bind her father's tongue. He, who was generally eager in his readiness to gratify her slightest wish, stood mute and frowning in face of her very dearest one.

"You have a guardian's right to use the house, papa, haven't you?"

"Yes. Oh, yes, of course!"

"And I know Tom would be only too glad. I shall write for his permission."

Still that unfriendly silence. "My heart is quite set upon it, papa."

Her father's surrender was sudden, but complete. "Then so is mine," he said almost violently, lifting her sweet face near enough to kiss her on both cheeks. "So it is settled. We will have our garden party over at Broxton Hall, and I will stop there this evening as I drive home from Rosecliff to give orders about having the house opened and properly aired. A good deal of wood chopping will be needed."

"Oh, I forgot court was in session!

You truant papa! You ought to have been in Rosecliff half an hour ago. I am going to send Reuben over with the ponies for Miss Mally. I am dying to talk with her all about the affair."

And she dismissed him with a shower of kisses and the injunction: "Don't be late in getting back, papa. There is so much to see about."

The day held more than its full quota of trials for the iron nerved man who never yielded a point to anything living but the soft dimpled child who held his very heartstrings in her careless grasp.

Night had fallen before he mounted his horse and turned its head homeward. Seven lonely miles stretched between him and Mandeville. He gladly would have foregone the stop at Broxton Hall on his way home, but he had promised Olivia, and that was enough. When he reached the outer gate to the gloomy old mansion, he dismounted and, flinging his bridle rein over the horse rack, made his way on foot up the crumbling brick walk, slimy now from the dense shading of the untrinned cedars.

There would be much to do in order to make Ollie's birthday fete a success, but it should be done. The cedars must be trimmed up tomorrow and the brick walls all scraped clean.

Reaching the house, he made a circuit around it. In a remote corner of the large back yard he knew he should find the care taker and his wife. He would give them general directions for opening the house, sunning the rooms and clipping the cedars. That must do for tonight, just by way of keeping his promise to Olivia.

He was tired, harassed, unhappy; but, whatever befell, the shadows that sometimes crowded thick and fast about his own resolute head should not infold her. To make Olivia happy was the law of his life, the mainspring of his every action, his one earthly desire.

Her father rewarded this flight with a somewhat acid smile.

"Your worldly wisdom becomes startling, my love. I think I shall have to get you a new doll to dress."

"Doll, indeed!" She mimicked his gravity. "Your capacity for insulting a helpless female becomes startling, my love. I think I shall have to get you a new pair of eyes the better to see, my dear." She came toward him, a riant, sparkling creature, and stood before him with crest uplifted. "Observe the length of my gown, if you please, and the Psyche knot which tops my mature and classic head."

Her father drew her to him almost roughly. "Olivia, you startle me in earnest. You are a young lady. The fact has burst upon me in a second. You are no longer my loving, trusting, unquestioning little darling. You will be measuring your strength with mine, demanding your place at my side rather than under my wing. It frightens me."

She laughed musically up into the furrowed face.

"What! Not abed thus early, Sir?"

"Not just abed, sir, but since the master's been gone Jess and me are in us, as willin' as not to lock us early and shut things out. It be awful lone some and gloomsome here now. Mr. Matthews, and unless things brighten up when Mr. Tom gets through school in I doubt if Jess and me can hold on at this gait."

And then Mr. Matthews told Simon how he was going to break the gloom spell by a garden party on his daughter's birthday, and Simon espoused his cause gladly. Broxton Hall used to be a happy and a gay house.

"Anything to bring back the old gladness, sir."

Mr. Matthews gave his orders about opening the house, clipping the cedars, etc. When he turned away, he heard the old man promptly bolt the door again, and as the wooden shutters were of solid boards the little cottage immediately offered but a dark, square bulk for observation. He returned as he had come. Making the circuit of the house from rear to front, by the side on which Colonel Broxton's study was located, involuntarily he glanced upward at the closed shutters, then started and stood still, wondering. A faint light, so faint that it might have been a phosphorescent glimmer, shone through the slats of the dark green shutters.

Whatever else his shortcomings, physical cowardice was not among them. Some one was in the Broxton house and in the colonel's study. To go back for Simon would be useless.

He would not come. He must depend upon his own address and his own nerve.

Ypsilanti's new daily paper, The Telegram, made its first appearance on Monday. It is an exclusively Ypsilanti publication, and the management announces that its columns are open to Ypsilanti advertisers only, no ads being accepted from outside merchants. The Telegram is issued from the Commercial office.—Detroit Free Press.

Messrs. Worden, Cremer, and Durrand, special assessors, appointed at the last meeting of the council to assess the value of the Congress street paving to the owners of the property adjoining, report that they will have the first estimates furnished by noon tomorrow. There is considerable red tape connected with the work, such as re-copying and re-verifying, and this will put off the completion of the assessments to next week.

While the proportion of girls to men at Albion College is not as great as at the Normal, the Methodists are more generous than their pedagogical brothers in that they allow the weaker sex to vote on the management of college athletics. The Albion athletic association is under a board of control, composed of an equal number of girls and men, the same being elected by the student body. The Albionites say that as the ladies pay the same fees as the men, they deserve the same privileges of management. Woman suffrage has never been advocated at the Normal, so it is not known how a proposal to follow Albion's example would be taken.

The ladies of the Degree of Honor of the A. O. U. W. held their annual meeting last evening and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Chief of honor, Mrs. Kate Joslyn; lady of honor, Mrs. Hattie Jackson; lady of ceremonies, Mrs. Mary Miles; recorder, Dr. Emily Benn; financier, Miss Bell Ross; receiver, Mrs. Rose Worden; usher, Miss Mabel Deff; inside watch, Miss Edith Russell; outside watch, W. T. Stone; past chief of honor, Mrs. Lucy Newton; representative to grand lodge, Mrs. M. S. Ross; alternate, Mrs. Anna Carpenter; trustee, Mrs. Russell; organist, Miss Mary Reinhart. CHIEF WARNER TALKS

DAYS' WORK.

By the Carelessness of a Traveling Salesman.

One of the big wholesale shoe houses with which local shoe men do business has a complicated method of reckoning the cost and selling prices of its goods to its customers. Each year, accordingly, the local dealers "take a day off" and figure up their consignment, and generally keep the results for reference. At one of the Ypsilanti establishments these records were hung this year near a gas fixture; consequently when a traveler leaned against the fixture last evening, the contrivance was moved to a position where the mass of paper was ignited. The accident was not noticed until the result of two hard days' work had been reduced to ashes and a portion of the wooden casing of the wall was in flames. The conflagration was extinguished without further damage to the institution, but the unfortunate author of the trouble was obliged to leave without placing an order with the firm; as Fred said that a traveling man who would cause him to lose the results of the hardest two days' work he ever put in, didn't count, and needn't expect any of his patronage.

QUITE LIVELY.

The suit of John S. Schaible against Robert Benz is going full blast. Arthur Brown and Cavanaugh & Wedemeyer are contesting the case, and the proceedings are quite interesting. The facts as brought out by the testimony are, that Schaible owned a building which was situated on the land of the defendant Benz, who made preparations to build on the lot, and gave Schaible notice to that effect. Benz had purchased the lot from his father, August 3, and the building had been allowed to stand, according to defendant's allegations, until he sold the property or determined to build thereon. When Benz was ready to build, his contractors had made considerable progress, he found the Schaible building to be an obstruction, and consequently removed the same, on which action for damages is brought. Witness testified that the structure was worth anywhere from $250 to $
